Gussie L. Relieves The Uncle Dan

The West Coast mail boat, Uncle Dan, was relieved of duties this trip by Capt. Leonard's Gussie L. The Dan has been beached at M. F. Inman's shop and is receiving some much-needed repairs to make her ready for the winter seas.

When the Dan was being run up into the bay before it was beached, it was allowed to run upon a reef and there it lay in almost the same shape as the C. P. R. steamer, Princess May, when she was stranded last summer. She was floated off at the next high tide and received no injuries for her land trip.

Seize British Launch

While the Tahn was running along Portland Canal on her return trip to Portland City, the launch Hecate, of Prince Rupert, was sighted in Nakat Inlet on the American side. She was boarded and the discovery made that she was without papers of any kind either for the boat or captain, accordingly she was seized and brought to Ketchikan, and Collector of Customs Willis notified of the seizure, who in turn took the matter up with the heads of his department at Washington. It turned out that the Hecate had been chartered at Prince Rupert by F. T. Hope of Seattle, and George J. Tsiveglou of New York, who are seeking a cannery site. Casper Malmborg is the Captain of the Hecate and in addition to the danger of losing his vessel by confiscation is liable to a personal fine.—Ketchikan Miner.

Meteors and the Atmosphere.

One of the most useful results arising from the study of sporadic meteors is the light thrown upon the question of the height of the atmosphere, since it is the friction of the air that sets them on fire, and if their elevation is known at the moment of their first appearance the probable height of the atmosphere can be calculated. On Aug. 11, 1909, a brilliant meteor happened to impress its picture simultaneously on three photographic plates, at Tashkent, Iskander and Tschimgan, in Russian Turkestan. The distances between these places furnished base lines from which the height could be deduced. The calculation shows that the meteor first appeared at a height of 60.45 miles above the earth and disappeared at fifty miles.

Hunters Invade The Interior

Several Parties Avail Themselves of the Excellent Big Game Hunting

One party consisting of Captain Douglas-Pennant, England, W. Word and Lord Lascelles of London, guided by Charlie Ruse of this place and J. A. Teit, of Spences Bridge, B. C., left Saturday on the Pt. Simpson bound for the interior. Mr. Teit has been guiding parties to the interior for nine years and is an authority on big game and Indians.

Wednesday morning the Telegraph took two parties up the river.

One party consisted of A. H. R. Wilson, St. Andrews, Scotland, J. S. Shepherd, Guilford, England, C. K. Horn and T. W. Belt, of London, were bound for Cassiar district. The other party, John C. Augsburg, of San Francisco, with Charlie Olson as guide, will pass through the Klappan country and go far into the interior. They intend to stay until the 20th of October.

The fact that noblemen of England will cross an ocean and a continent to go into the headwaters of the Stikine for hunting speaks well of the sporting opportunities of this section.

Jefferies To Kodiak

Last Thursday evening, when the Jefferson landed at the dock, a number of Wrangell citizens happened to be on the dock and saw the Ex-Champion, James J. Jefferies.

It had been the intention of the party to hunt and fish at Wrangell but owing to the late start they were unable to stop and went on to Juneau and took passage farther north on the Alameda. However they made many inquiries about the hunting in this vicinity and probably will stop here when on their way back in October.

A. M. Tyson, inspector of Indian Agencies, returned from an inspection trip to Telegraph Creek on the Port Simpson. He informs us that he has appointed Scott Simpson as Indian Agent of the Stikine Agency.

Photographs Of Glacier Lake

Monday afternoon, K. J. Johansen, took W. H. Case, the Juneau photographer and J. E. Worden, Doctor Shurick, Marshal Grant L. C. Patenaude and Mr. Barbee to Glacier Lake up the Stikine River. Mr. Case and Mr. Worden got some fine views of the glaciers and other scenic attractions of the trip.

All of the party declare the trip to Glacier Lake to be one of the best they have ever taken.

Stikine Excursion

Many Wrangell people availed themselves of the excursion rates on the Pt. Simpson and took the delightful Stikine River run to Telegraph Creek, B. C. and return.

Those who made the trip from Wrangell were, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Grant, Misses Margaret and Kathryn Bronson, Mrs. and Miss Noyes, Mrs. Lawerance and A. Sorset.

The boat returned Wednesday evening and all the tourists were enthusiastic about the trip.

Governor Hughes, of New York, has followed the hot weather example of J. G. Grant and trimmed his famous beard.

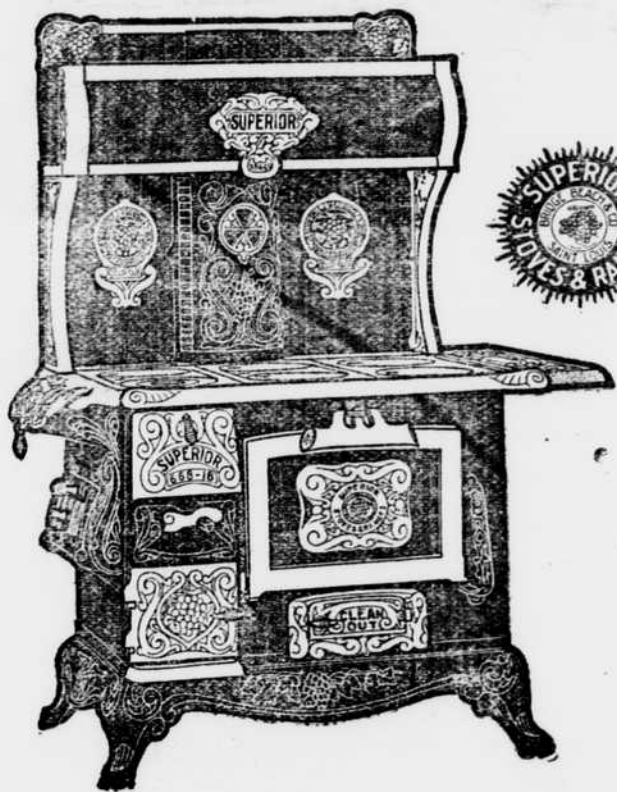

Water System Gets Repairs

The city reservoir has been very low as a result of a leak in the dam and the continued dry weather. Wednesday afternoon the leak was repaired by N. L. Moen.

The extension of the water main is being rapidly pushed by a crew of men under the guidance of N. L. Moen. Much of the ditch is already completed and for several days light blasts have been heard as the workmen encountered boulders and bed-rock. As soon as the ditch is completed, the main, hydrants and gate valves will be put in.

Lengthy and Monotonous.

One of the most curious contracts entered into by an operatic artist was that agreed to by Farinelli. When he visited Spain, Philip V. was suffering from mental depression, from which nothing aroused him until the arrival of Farinelli. The queen was so delighted to see her royal spouse once more interested that she engaged Farinelli at a salary of $10,000 to remain in Madrid. This he did, singing the same four songs to the king every night for ten years.

Boy Scouts Trip To Glacier Lake

By Weston Dalgetty

It was the morning of the 8th of August and all the Boy Scouts of Wrangell were on board Capt. Johansen's swift running cruiser the Duckland. All were excited and it was nine o'clock before we made our start. It was a splendid day for an outing and this put everyone in good spirits. Time passed quickly on the boat and at twelve o'clock we found ourselves at Cottonwood Island at the mouth of the Stikine River. Here we went ashore for a few minutes to eat lunch. In what seemed a very short time Capt. Johansen called out, "All aboard" and we continued our trip up the river.

Now we began to get the force of the rivers current and our progress was slower, the scenery around us was beautiful. The trees along the banks looked as if they had been taken care of, they were so regular and of about the same height. Further back of these were the high snow-capped mountain with their great walls of solid rock. It reminded one of a great arm of ice stretching down the side of the mountain, but these things began to be tiresome and boys fell to reading or tried to go to sleep.

At four o'clock we turned into a large slough and dropped anchor and the two small boats were then loaded and we started to row to Glacier Lake. We stopped on a point just before entering the lake to allow Mr. Corser to get a picture of the glaciers and the mountains behind and finally decided to make camp there. Here was where we met our first troubles. No straight poles could be gotten for the tent but we finally managed to get along on some sticks that looked like a knock-kneed person. After we got the tent up we carried stones for the camp fire and then went out for wood. In carrying the wood to the camp we all managed to get a fine collection of scratches from a small forest of alders through which we had to pass. After the camp was made three of the boys started the supper while the rest went out to look things over. It was then that we got our first look at the lake. At the further end of the lake we could see the glacier coming out of the canyon and the water was filled with floating icebergs from it. The shores of the lake were very steep and there were many high walls of rock.

The supper that night was a grand affair, the cooks forgot there was anybody but themselves to cook for and produced what I should consider a square meal for a ground hog and it was only after a hard tussle that I managed to land a half of a potato and a number of my brave comrades fared even worse than myself, but our hunger was partly satisfied when the coffee came around for the dear cooks were kind enough to give us about a half cup of coffee grounds which we ate with great relish as you may judge. After supper two boys washed the dishes while the rest of us sick from overeating, unrolled our blankets and prepared for bed. Though everyone was tired it was a long time before we went to sleep and then we did not sleep for long as certain young fellows would suddenly take a notion to tell their troubles to others at just about the time the rest were dosing off, some of their talk went like this, "Some class to them spuds, eh?" and "Gee, my feet are sticking outside," or "Come on over with some of my blankets" Oh! it was delightful to listen to just as you were going to sleep and two or three times I was so tickled I got up and punched the speaker's head.

But this was nothing to what followed. At half past two in the morning a couple of brave Scouts got up and cooked breakfast and roused the rest out at four. But that wasn't all for when we got up we found nothing but a lot of burnt mush which was only about twice as bad as coffee grounds. After looking at the breakfast we threw it away and made a new one which I may truthfully say was a dandy. After breakfast we lay around waiting for the Captain who had spent the night aboard his ship.

At about seven o'clock we heard two shots fired from the direction of the Duckland and three of us got into a rowboat and rowed down to find out what the matter was. We had gone but a little way when we met the Captain rowing in the direction of our camp. "Did you hear him holler?" he asked in a rather excited way. "Here what holler?" we asked in turn. "Why?" he replied, "I just wounded a big grizzly that was crossing the slough I missed him the first time I fired but must have got him the last time for he let out a howl and threw himself straight up in the water. But he got away on the other side of the slough before I could shoot again. My! I never knew there was any bear around here. You'll have to break camp tonight and sleep on the Duckland."

This report of the bear caused great excitement in camp but none showed any fear of the bear.

SWITCHED THEIR VOTES.

The Incident That Won Tom Corwin's First Fight For Congress.

"When I saw the oil painting of Tom Corwin in the treasury," said an Ohio man, "I could not but recall the story told in Corwin's old home of Lebanon of how he won his first election to congress. He was a young man and already noted as an orator, but he had a hard district and little encouragement for election. He was making his tour of the counties and one night stopped at the double cabin of a farmer known to be a very fervent advocate of political policies of the opposition. Corwin talked politics carefully with the old man and his sons before bedtime, but had little hope of winning a single vote in the household. In the morning the old man took Corwin outside and announced that every voter in the family would be for him on election day. This astonished and delighted Corwin, who could not help but ask why the sudden change of heart.

"The old man told how the opposition candidate had stopped at his house one night the week before and how the host and wife had watched the candidate go to bed. To their disgust, he actually put on a nightgown like those worn by a woman. This disgusted the rugged old pioneer. Then Corwin was told how the old farmer and his wife had watched him go to bed, and as he had not bothered about a nightie, they determined he was not taken to frills. Corwin could see the humor of the incident, and in every succeeding speech he told that night-shirt story on the other candidate, holding him up to scorn. The result was a victory for Corwin, and he owed it all to that story of a shirt."—Washington Post.
